

Survey on Navigating Software Documentation

Instructions

- You will now be shown four StackOverflow threads. In each thread, some sentences will be highlighted like this. You should click on each highlighted sentence in a thread before proceeding to the next one.
- Once you click on a highlighted sentence, you will be asked some questions about this sentence in terms of its usefulness and helpfulness for navigating the various solutions to the question in the given threads. All threads revolve around json-related questions. We ask you to read the question in the thread to be able to answer our questions on each highlighted sentence.
- Once you finish answering the questions related to a given sentence, it will look like this, so you know you already evaluated that sentence.
- Once you finish evaluating all highlighted sentences in the current thread, you will be able to proceed to the next thread.
- After finishing the four threads, you will be asked some final general questions about the sentences you saw.
- Please note that the threads are picked randomly for each user from a pool of threads. The number of sentences in each thread varies. Each thread has 2-6 sentences.
- Remember that some of the rendering does not work properly on Google Chrome so we advise you to use Firefox or Safari.
